A Measure of Excellence

In looking back at the 1988-89 academic year, you may stop to think about what it is that makes Stetson special to you. Friends, events, faculty, staff, and acquaintances may come to mind as memories bring back the past. There is a certain element, however, that links people, places, and events together in a special relationship unique to Stetson. That element is the gold standard.

This particular gold standard is what makes us proud to put Stetson University down on our resumé. We have received an excellent education at a college rich in history and prestige. We know our professors, we know each other — we are not a number. We are encouraged to grow personally through a wealth of organizations and student activities.

The gold standard, therefore, describes our years here at Stetson. It is the standard against which all others are measured.

Friends Scott Uguccioni and Derek Graver are skeptical when Ron Gironde insists he bikes three miles everyday.

Our graduate school and medical school students find that they are in the top part of their classes.

Best of the Best

Well, we did it again! According to U.S. News and World Report, Stetson University was ranked as one of the top twenty comprehensive universities in the nation. This was the third year that Stetson had ranked in the U.S. News college survey, but the first time it had been included in the national level.

What is it about Stetson that encourages its community to strive for the highest levels of excellence, the "gold standard?" It is the positive competitiveness and goal-oriented thinking of the students. It is the commitment and availability of the staff and administrators. It is also the dedication and creativity of the faculty. Because of quality students and administrators, faculty, and staff members who strive for high ideals in all areas of education, Stetson as a whole will continue to maintain the gold standard.

Q: Why do you do all of the extra things that you do?

A: Sandra Cluett: They (my activities) complement each other. What I learn in one area helps and ties in to how I act in other situations and other activities.

A: Jamie Clark: Being an R.A. develops interpersonal skills and teaches you all kinds of organization and time management. It teaches you how to deal with frustration. It gives you the opportunity to (be an) influence in other students' lives.

all that glitters

All that glitters on a campus such as Stetson's is the special people that make the college unique. And events like Greenfeather, Parents' Weekend, and FOCUS as well as daily life allow students, faculty, and staff members to really shine.

The year began with FOCUS, a week of activities to help new students feel more "at home." Then came sorority and fraternity Rush, two consecutive weeks of membership drives. Greenfeather followed in October, with Parents' Weekend winding up the week. Homecoming, held in March, finished the year with a bang! But the "little" things that happened in between these major events also provided us with memories that last a lifetime.

Greetings from Montigo Bay

With the choir from University Baptist Church from her hometown of Coral Gables, Jennifer McLean traveled to Jamaica this past summer. During the days there, the 55 member group taught Bible School to children in different towns. Jennifer recalls, "If you gave (the children) love and affection, they gave you so much in return." In the evenings, the choir performed a musical called "Army of the Lord" in various churches near Montigo Bay.

SUMMERS THAT SHINE

Thinking of You

Mike's "summer" vacation lasted nearly a year as he spent time living and learning about himself and other people while participating in some unusual activities. He built igloos, excavated caves, climbed mountains, and joined in other truly wilderness activities.

Wish You Were Here

Like many students, Stacy Megica stayed with her parents this summer. She, however, traveled to Zimbabwe, Africa to see them. Her father, a foreign service officer, was stationed there. While there, Stacy went on safaris, saw Victoria Falls, visited villages, and even saw a witch doctor.

Friends on Campus

"Friendly, helpful, reliable, and honest," were a few of the words used to describe the 32 super-students who made up the FOCUS staff. But exactly what was it about these upperclassmen that made them such a blessing to new students?

"I really enjoyed the FOCUS groups," said Laurie Burns. "Our advisor was really honest about what college life would really be like."

"They knew what they were talking about." Kevin Maffett added, "If you asked them a question, they knew the answer." All of the freshmen polled said they really enjoyed the activities. "I loved PLAYFAIR!!" was the enthusiastic response from most.

The recipients of the rave reviews were the FOCUS staff, a diverse group of upperclassmen, representing many different majors, social and extracurricular interests. Each member shared a concern for the incoming students, both freshmen and transfer students. They were Friends On Campus.

Armed with helpful advice and a smile, FOCUS advisor Caroline Hunter helped freshman to get checked in and registered on move-in day.

FOCUS Co-chairman Dave Whidden was awed by Dr. Lee's house. He and Co-chairman Tammy Firman were helping greet people at the President's Reception.

FOCUS sponsored a “Dating Game” as entertainment for the new students. Lucky bachelorette Michelle Maas won night out for two.

FOCUS advisor Mike Kelley chatted with Dr. and Mrs. Lee at the President’s Reception. FOCUS sponsors the event every year to allow new students to meet the president and faculty members.

What's the Rush?

Sorority and fraternity Rush were held in mid-September this year, with fraternity Rush beginning just as sorority Rush ended.

"Fraternity Rush was very successful and well-run this year," said Amy Tamberrino, Student Life Assistant. "All together, fraternities pledged 143 new members, even more than last year." Bid day rounded out the week of Rush events as each fraternity's new associates cheered together as they received their bid cards.

Many of the girls who participated in sorority Rush indicated that sororities could help them meet people, make friends, and adjust better to life at college. Misty Mead thought, "Sororities consider friendship and individuality as two important qualities" in their group.

Pam Childers served as Panhellenic Rush chairman this year. She set up all sorority Rush activities and coordinated the Rho Chi advisors. Her efforts and those of the sororities paid off as 118 bids were accepted.

“Sororities look for someone who is going to contribute effort, interest, and enthusiasm. A smile from someone is a great contribution.”

that extra special touch

How would you feel if you knew you were going to have to prepare food for 2000 people, three times a day, seven days a week, for ten months? This challenge is what faced the Food Service this year. According to Mr. Elliot Palmer, the Director of Food Services, "In order to vary the monotony of eating the same kinds of food every day, the Food Services planned events like the Hawaiian-style luaus. These were done in a cookout style outside the Commons, complete with pineapples, coconuts, and a roasted pig. A band was provided to add a festive atmosphere to the occasion. Another example was an Italian dinner that was served with different kinds of pastas and sauces, complete with red-checked table cloths. "We enjoy doing it, it helps break the monotony. The more we can do it we will," said Palmer. The Food Service also held an open forum meeting where students could propose any improvements for the Hat Rack or Commons.

Silver Spoons

Upon encountering the food in the Commons, everyone on campus suddenly becomes a critic. Despite the additional negative views students have of cafeteria food, many people do enjoy eating there and some even compliment the food. One student commented, "I like the food very much, although most people say school food is not good. I am an international student so I did not know what to expect of American food, but I like it." Melissa Heck feels, "As far as cafeteria food, it's pretty good. It's certainly better than high school." Many students would agree.

The majority probably fall into another category. Most people use the commons strictly for social purposes. One student pointed out, "I think the food leaves something to be desired, but it provides a good social atmosphere." One could detect that simply by the noise level during dinner time.

There still remains those students who stay as far away as possible. One student was particularly skeptical, "I just double check what it is before I eat. I don't touch it if the people serving don't even know what it is!"

Only so much can be done to institutional food, but

Food Service has gone out of their way to make the "Commons experience" a more pleasant one, with attractive displays and fruit baskets, a red and white awning for line three, and pewter bowls and dishes for the salad bar.

Teresa Grandia, an exchange student, was excited about the homemade pies and cakes, "I never eat sweet things, but the desserts are very good."

Getting in the luau spirit, food service workers greet every student with a lei — and a smile.

Growing boys need a well-balanced meal... Derrall Dumas, Frank Ireland, and Maurice Cowan.

Standard of Living

On-campus living: it's not just a dorm, it's an adventure. It is an adventure, however, that is shared by over 60% of students, enhanced by nearly 60 Residential Life employees, and supported by major campus funding. In fact, almost $1 million was spent in renovations of Nemec and Emily Halls this past summer.

Students are most familiar with the programming side of Residential Life. From the beginning of the year, RA's plan creative programs to help residents enhance their out-of-classroom experiences.

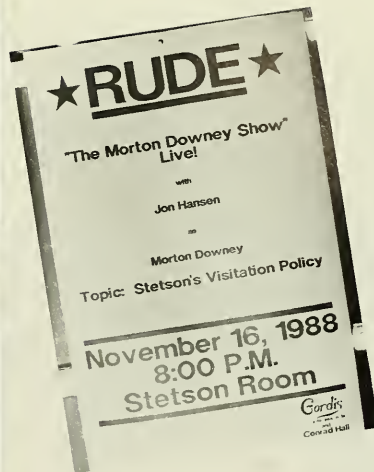

Moving in day was pretty hectic but Anita Heist managed with ease.

New residents at their first hall meeting — Ester McClen-don, Catrice Johnson, Rachel Hoffman, and Yun Chong Chang. They were told to bring something special to them.

Rude is right! Gordis and Conrad halls presented "The Morton Downey Show," a panel discussion to discuss Stetson's current visitation policy in the residence halls. John Hansen portrayed the arrogant, obnoxious, and terribly RUDE Morton Downey. Kristen Jones, Jeff Arnold, and Kenny Littlefield were a few of the panel members who took part in the heated debate.

Resident advisors Tammy Elssesser, Kim Fugate, and Jenna Bevan relax at a University Picnic after a hectic week of intensive RA training.

A Labor of Love

Great things come in pairs: peanut butter and jelly; Abbott and Costello, Greenfeather and Parents' Weekend! Once again, for the first time in several years, Greenfeather week hosted Parents' Weekend as the grande finale to its own festivities. The week involved many of the old Greenfeather favorites: the Mr. Beauty Contest, the sidewalk chalk drawing in front of the CUB, the Rock-a-thon, Miss Greenfeather, blood drive, a Fun Run, and other fundraising activities. In all, Greenfeather activities raised over $24,000 for local charities.

Parents' Weekend concluded the week with special events like the Parents' Follies and introducing proud parents to new friends.

The 1988 Miss Greenfeather Candidates: Back: Pam Childers, Julie Nichols, Stacey Megica, Shelly Minotti, Annette Wilson, Cami Anderson, Renee Cirlincione, Marilyn Marino. Front: Alexis Croft, Karlene Himburg, Medody Weber, Natalie Barth, Kim Summers, Letha Rhodes, Sheri Fields, Misty Mead.

Students just don't quit doing charity work during Greenfeather—it was also a chance to save a life by giving blood.

Pi Phi presented "It's a Hard Knock Life" to a crowd of proud parents during the Parent's Weekend Follies.

Perfecting her culinary talents at the Greenfeather Carnival, CCM president Jackie Cinnotti made funnel cakes for the crowd.

Hot Topics Seen in a New and Different Light

By Glenn Kindred
The Burning Question
Remains: What is a Hatter?

The plaguing question of "what is a Hatter?" is still boggling the minds of students and alumni alike. Recently, the Sociology Department has conducted a study to answer this very question. Reportedly, the Hatter is either a distant cousin of the famed Boston Celtic mascot or the San Francisco version of the Marlboro man.

Other stories include the continued Department of Biology study on plant life which is being conducted in the Holler Foundation. This study, the longest of its type ever attempted, is scheduled to be completed the day before graduation, just prior to the arrival of Stetson's Trustees.

The issue of ethics in business has also come to Stetson.

Sources have revealed that a multi-million dollar study will be conducted by the middle-level administration this summer in Tahiti. The study is designed to allow researchers to fully understand Tahitian leadership habits and their relation to the ever-rising tuition at Stetson.

Once again, Stetson received national recognition as one of the "best values in higher education." Reportedly, graduating seniors will receive a Ronco vegetable slicer and a Ginsu knife with their diplomas. A source within the administration commented that "it is exactly this type of incentive which really sets Stetson apart from schools like Princeton, Harvard, and Yale."

The Student Government is reporting a bumper crop of successful legislation this year. Among its greatest achievements listed are more chocolate ice cream in the commons during the week, pencil sharpeners in the library, and an increase in toilet paper in Davis Hall.

And that's the way it was, during the 106th year of our university. Until the fall, may your heart be green and your summer long. And if you're leaving, never to return, may your future be half as rewarding as your time at Stetson. If it is, you'll have found success.

Stetson beauty Colleen Barry has become a famous face as well as double psychology and education major.

Unknown to Colleen, her proud father sent her picture into a national spokesmodel contest for Guinness and Harp beer. Out of the thousands that applied, the company narrowed it down to five semifinalists. Those semifinalists each won $5,000 and a chance to compete with one another to become Miss St. Patrick's Day 1989. As a semifinalist, she also won several all-expense paid trips and photo shoots in New York, Miami, and Washington, D.C.

"Hello. We're not here right now but leave your name and number. BEEP." Stetson students are so spoiled that they get confused when a live voice answers.

STUDENTS REVOLT-

RAFTERS BORN

John B. and the other founders of our beloved university had no idea that 100 years later, students were rocking the Rafters down in the distinguished Carlton Student Union.

But they are. In fact, starting on February 11, students have found a whole new meaning to the word "weekend." Thanks to the Stetson Union Board (SUB), what was previously known as the Alley gameroom has been transformed into Rafters

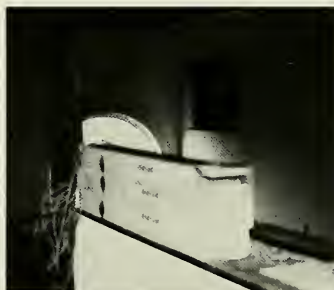

... gameroom/nightclub/hang-out extraordinaire.

Responding to outcries from the general student body concerning the decisive lack of things to do on weekends, SUB got busy. According to Rodney Ellis, SUB adviser, most of the renovations were actually done by students. "They all worked very hard," he commented.

Ellis told close inside sources that the Alley acquired its name in an unusual way. When it was built in the 1950's, it was a bowling alley. An alley. After that, it lay dormant for quite some time, used occasionally as storage for the Campus Bookstore. When it was rejuvenated into a gameroom, the name "Alley" stuck, although, says Ellis, "none of the students remembered it as a bowling alley at all."

Now, Rafters continues the tradition of being for the students, by the students. The Stetson Enquirer wishes it continued success.

Students did most of the construction during the Rafters project.

The focus of the room is a large, bricked arch window.

UPDATE

By: Amy Tamberrino

AQUARIUS

After the 12th of this month, you will find great academic challenges. But fear not! After the 21st, you will discover a newfound freedom. Seniors, your newly acquired freedom will bring you an overwhelming sense of joblessness.

GEMINI

All the planets are aligned in a way that can benefit you, especially in this time of transition. By acting early, you can corner the market on cardboard boxes and go into the moving business.

LIBRA

The sports enthusiast has a variety of opportunities to get involved, both as a spectator and as a participant. But watch out for any stray punches at all events involving USF teams!

PISCES

Constant cruising of the CUB will benefit you this month. Don't give up. Timing is everything. Be persuasive. Your scope is only a smile away — and you've got the smile to do it!

CANCER

Although this year is almost over, you will find new and unique ways to get even more involved on campus for next year. Consider Habitat for Humanity, Republican or Democrat groups, or CSR.

SCORPIO

This is your time to shine. Your financial aid is confirmed, your class schedule has no Friday classes, you got the exact room you wanted for Fall, and romance is waiting for you in your Tuesday morning class.

ARIES

The full moon and seventeenth sun signifies your enthusiasm for dear Stetson U. Channel your energy in constructive ways: paint your face green, buy a cowboy hat, and learn the alma mater.

LEO

A crescent moon this month will signify big changes for you. Summer semester introduces new friends, challenging classes, hanging out by the pool, and a great tan. Inspiration will lead you to the top before long!

SAGITTARIUS

Challenges await you. Follow up on causes you believe in by taking the appropriate actions — talk to your professors, go through SGA, take it up with SUB, ask an administrator. You CAN make a difference at Stetson.

TAURUS

Your "bullish" nature will help you go for and get what you want. Take off those headphones, check under your bed for your textbooks, try to remember where the library is, and get that 4.0!

VIRGO

Now is the time to explore the world outside Stetson's campus; specifically, Deland. Check out the museum, the airport, the YMCA, Blue Springs . . . and while you're at it, take a risk and be nice to a townsie.

CAPRICORN

A cluster of four planets point the way to creative successes. Ingenuity can help you beat what's beating you: notorious Stetson red tape, your neurotic roommate, finding time to "play!"

College Republican Parties It Up With Bush Clan

Avid college Republican Regina Brzozowski introduced herself to one of the Bush family bodyguards in order to get in close with the First family. Regina and a few other Stetson students attended the Florida Ball in Washington D.C. during Inauguration weekend as part of their winter term trip. Regina sought the opportunity to talk with Jeb Bush, the President's son who resides in Fort Lauderdale, and she was very impressed with his manner — "Upon talking with Jeb Bush, I told him that tomorrow must be the happiest day in his life because his father was soon to be inaugurated. He replied, 'The happiest day of my life was when my son was born.' This humble attitude which I'm sure exists throughout the Bush family is one characteristic which will make the Bush's a popular first family. They seem so secure in their own self esteem that they don't have to act or try to please anyone. Their character is of perfect New England breeding."

Homecoming '89

Homecoming was an outstanding success this year. More than 25 activities were planned for alumni and students to celebrate the theme, "Stetson Around the World." The theme was chosen because of Stetson's strong international ties — 180 alumni live abroad. Homecoming Co-chairman

Donna Christopher and Doug Wells spent eight months in planning the weekend of events, which included a Presidential reception, a picnic in the Forest of Arden, an open house at International House, a host of reunion parties, and the Homecoming basketball game against Samford University. We won the game with a final score of 70-65. The largest success was the semi-formal Homecoming Reunion Dance at the Deland Hilton. Students and alumni rocked the night away with Homecoming King and Queen — John Joyner and Susan Coker.

Derrall Dumas scored two for Stetson in the second quarter.

Q:

What do you like about having your older sister or brother here at school with you?

golden years

To be a student at Stetson University is to be challenged every day, both academically and in extracurricular endeavors. At a university such as Stetson, student involvement and achievement percentages are much, much higher than at large state schools or community colleges. This is true for many reasons: 1) It is easier to find out about the available activities, 2) Students expect each other to be involved and strive to do well on campus, 3) There are a variety of activities in which to become involved, 4) A large percentage of Stetson's total population lives "with" each other in the residence halls so it is easy to hear about new activities and to study together.

Eric Anderson

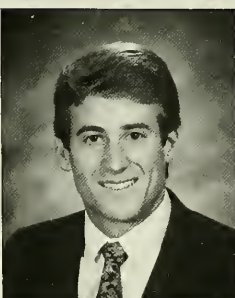

As Eric reflects on his four years at Stetson, he realizes how much more aware of others he is. The activity he enjoyed the most at Stetson was being involved in Forensics. It was an outlet for him and one that he excelled in by winning many awards, including second place in impromptu speaking at the Crimson Classic Tournament held in Alabama. He also enjoyed participating in Model Senate. He was Senator Ford and won the Outstanding Senator Award. Eric found such activities challenging and stimulating. The thing Eric will miss most after he leaves Stetson are his fraternity brothers and friends. He hates the thought of everyone splitting up and being scattered across the country. Eric would love to be an undergrad forever, but feels he would get tired of the commons.

Kimberly Gossett

Kimberly Gossett was very involved in all aspects of campus life, from religious organizations like Intervarsity and BCM to academic and honorary organizations like Sigma Pi Sigma and Omicron Delta Kappa. She feels that Stetson has pushed her to excel. Academically, through physics and math, "I've been pushed to achieve and think analytically. The fact that I'm leaving with that ability makes me think very highly of Stetson." She received an Honorable Mention in a recent National Society of Physics Students Competition.

Socially, religious life organizations like Intervarsity help set the gold standard by which to live. Intervarsity is the most important group to her, "It gives you any opportunity you need as far as personal growth."

The atmosphere brought her to Stetson. "It is very personable. In my Quantum Mechanics class, there is only one other student and whenever we have class, the professor is so easy to talk to, it is just like sitting in his living room having a chat."

Kimberly has a word of advice that helped her to succeed while at Stetson, "Continue to challenge yourself, gain knowledge and experience things."

Doug Wells

"During the winter term of my sophomore year," Doug Wells recalls, "I went on an Outward Bound trip. It changed my view of myself and what I wanted." Doug says he then realized tht he is more people-oriented than business-oriented. His activities as East Area Co-ordinator allow him to work with many different people each day, and to feel like he can really make a difference on campus. He says he tried to push himself to give 100% at all times, and that he finds his job as AC most satisfying when he sees it impacting positively on someone else's life.

Doug advises underclassmen to get involved, push themselves and push Stetson. He believes that the students here are incredibly talented and that the faculty help them reach their full potential.

He also urges students to participate on campus and work to strengthen campus-wide spirit. Speak up for your rights and push the administration to better the school as a whole.

Jim Current

As president of his fraternity, Tim has enjoyed being involved with campus activities. He has seen a change over the year in the Greek system: a movement away from stressing group social activities and limited service to being more concerned with involvement with all of Stetson and the DeLand community. The IFC, Tim feels, played a part in this. While a member of the organization, Tim and IFC brought speakers to campus who discussed issues that involved all Stetson students.

The thing Tim says he is going to miss most is not being able to walk down the hall and see a friend. His advice to others is to enjoy their time at Stetson. He recalls, as a freshman, seniors saying how fast the four years pass. Only this year has he really come to realize how fast the time has indeed slipped away.

Pat Daxon

As a member of the soccer team and ODK, Pat proved that you can do what you really enjoy and excel in studies too. He came to school knowing one person but found it easy to make friends, especially through soccer. In his first year here, the team had its first winning record and he won the MVP award. He served as team captain for three years and was voted to represent Stetson at the TAAC Conference. Pat also enjoyed volunteering his time to coach young kids at soccer camps saying, with excitement, "It's the best thing!"

Pat feels that he now sees what will benefit him in the future: a good education. He encourages everyone to enjoy college and believes that you can work hard and have fun at the same time.

For Andrea, the first thing that comes to mind about Stetson is the people. She believes that what is unique about a small school is that you really get to know the people. Andrea found that she has gained more confidence in herself and that it is important to keep an open mind.

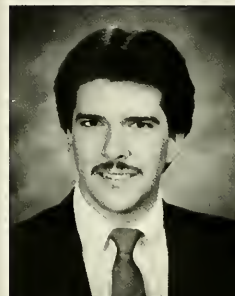

Being an RA is something she will never forget. She said she had a terrific hall, where it did not matter whether someone was a Greek or Non-Greek because of the unique sense of unity felt there. Andrea advises others to get involved. "It does not matter," she says, "which organization one decides to join because they all provide positive experiences and teach you to work with others." After graduation she'll miss being surrounded by friends and the attention of her professors who made her feel like somebody and not just a number. Her advice: "Expect good things and they will happen."

Katie Byrne

Katie Byrne is a people person and she says that people are most important to her, especially Stetson people. She believes that Stetson is special because of the warm atmosphere. You can get a decent education at a lot of schools, but you can't find the friendliness. Even if you don't know people, you feel comfortable saying "Hi!"

Katie also describes Stetson as a "diamond in the rough." Stetson has been written up well lately in the media and people are starting to realize that it's always been a good school.

Katie stresses one bit of advice from her years here, "I can't believe I'm a senior already. Whatever you do, get involved NOW and enjoy yourself. Before you know it you'll be done and you'll never ever get a chance to go back. DO IT NOW!"

One of her most memorable moments of her Stetson career was spending winter term at a college in Kentucky. "It was a totally different type of school and it forced me to learn a lot about myself. I think I came back a better person."

As Captain of the baseball team, Pat has been a spirited "Hatter." He helped the team win the Conference and go on to play in the Southeast regionals last year where they beat FSU. Yeah!! Pat played first base and won the MVP award his senior year.

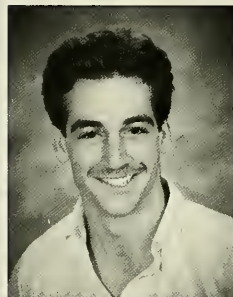

Stetson has helped Pat to be more organized. He also feels that Stetson has aided him in his spiritual growth as he participated in Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Pat is going to miss all of his close friends and professors and says, "What am I going to do now?" which is probably something going through the minds of all of his fellow students.

Carmen Llop

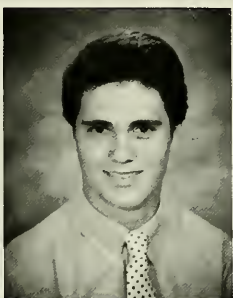

When asked what she will miss most at Stetson, Carmen smiled and exclaimed, "That rat on my hall named Ralph." But seriously, the good friends that she made including faculty will greatly be missed. Carmen found that being active in the Music School had helped her to expand into other areas of campus life. She plays the violin and won a scholarship to the Congress of Strings held in Detroit. Carmen also helped to organize a benefit concert for the families of Mark Reed and Eric Cavendar who were in an automobile accident. She felt great to see faculty and students volunteering their time and working together. Carmen hopes to leave the Music School in a better condition than when she came and says, "I'm ready to move on!" believing that she is prepared for just that!

Laura chose to come to Stetson for academics and feels it was right to pick a small school where the professors show a personal interest. Active in SUB and serving as its president her junior year, Laura feels that it was one of her best learning experiences with Rodney Ellis. She has also won the J. Ollie Edmonds Leadership Award for all her hard work for the campus. Her favorite time of year here is Greenfeather. She loves how the students pull together to work for a common goal and stresses how many don't realize the power they have as a group in making a difference in Volusia County. Laura feels, "You need to look back on Stetson and remember the times when you were successful and hold them when you face a new challenge."

Kelley McNamera

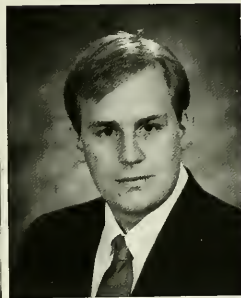

Kelley bursts with enthusiasm and school spirit when she thinks about Stetson and her four years here. She had never seen herself in a presidential position until she found herself doing just that as president of Sigma Tau Delta. Holding that office as well as others gave her the confidence and responsibility that she desired. Kelley enjoys doing community service activities with her organizations; these have included going to a day care center and Christmas caroling at a nursing home. She gets a lot of personal satisfaction and reward from such activities. Kelley feels that Stetson has allowed her to do things that she never thought possible. She feels it as both academically and socially stimulating. "Stetson challenges you," she said, "and I learned to face the challenge."

Mike McNatt

Mike is full of great aspirations and inspirations. Transferring from a large university, he came to Stetson as a Junior and went a fifth year to take advantage of the college experience. His list of activities is larger than most people's grocery lists. Among his favorite activities are SGA and Intervarsity. As an early member of IV, he saw the organization grow from 15 to 130 active members. Mike also feels that the years here have helped him to establish his own values and beliefs.

On the back of Mike's jersey is written: "KEEP'N THE FAITH." This is a motto that he tries to live by. As he looks back over his years at Stetson, Mike feels that he has tried to do the best he can. This is also what he would like to be able to say at the end of his lifetime.

Susan Mull

Once Susan saw that she could get good grades she wanted to see how much more she could do. She recalls looking for ways to get involved and the Head Resident job seemed to be it. As the years went by the list of activities got longer. She believes that Stetson started a process of bringing out the best in her and gave her a strong foundation to work with. Susan has also acquired a better understanding of herself and has learned to have fun and truly enjoy life.

Susan says, "Stetson is like a big family to me," and is going to miss the people that make who and what Stetson is. She advises others to "believe and have faith in yourself, but above all believe and have faith in the Lord."

Anne recalls not being involved her first semester because she didn't know what to expect. She just soared after that and she can now say, "Wow! I'm one of the leaders on campus! That's scary!" She is really happy that she had an opportunity to get involved in campus activities and feels honored to have been selected a HR when only a sophomore. She was also a part of the core group that helped get Intersivity off the ground which helped her to grow spiritually.

Anne believes that above all, she learned to take risks, which she encourages others to do. She says, "Sometimes you will succeed and sometimes you will not, but the only way you will truly fail is by not trying."

Lillian Washington

Lillian has found that Stetson helped her in many ways. Her interests expanded and she learned to interact with and relate to many different people. As president of her sorority and by taking part in other leadership positions, she feels that she has become a leader and is more aware of her potential. She says that every activity she was involved in helped her in some way. One that she really enjoyed was working on the Stetson Homecoming Committee. She enjoyed talking with alumni and found that they were all very proud of Stetson, both its past and its present. Lillian feels that her Stetson career was one stage in her life that she enjoyed and will miss. It was a time of growing and she hopes that, as she moves into the next stage, she will be able and allowed to achieve more great things.

Looking back over her four year college career, Claudia was very thankful for being able to participate in leadership positions. She felt that there was a great deal of opportunity to get involved here at Stetson.

Like many freshmen, Claudia was a little hesitant to get involved, but through her sorority and Student Government Association, she began to really experience campus life. She believes that it is important to do more than just academics and that the small-school atmosphere encourages that.

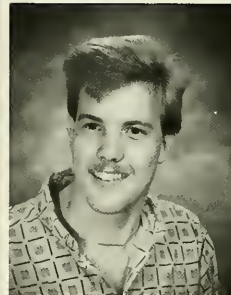

Claudia is a member of several honorary organizations and enjoys participating on committees that involve students, faculty and administrators. This experience has helped her to get to know members of the faculty and administration better.

going for the gold

From horseshoes to soccer and from varsity basketball to golf, Stetson's intramural and athletic conference programs provide students with a vital element of their education.

Intramurals brings a variety of groups (fraternities, residence halls, sororities, commuters) together to compete in a wide range of sports. Although flag football may be the most infamous, intramural events also include soccer, horseshoes, swimming, cross country, table tennis, bowling, volleyball, and badminton.

On a national competition level, Stetson athletes participate in an equally diverse number of sports. Basketball, golf, tennis, volleyball, baseball, softball, cross country, and soccer round out the athletic program.

SOCCER TEAM ACHIEVES GREATNESS

This is the finest group of seniors I've ever had.

—Gary McKinley

When the soccer team achieved a record of 11-5-1, they knew they were good. They set a new Stetson record. For three weeks they were ranked in the NCAA — South top 10 poll and the goalkeeper Mike Estes, a senior, finished with a new individual low goal-against average of 0.85 with at least four shut outs to his credit.

Tri-captains Pat Daxon, senior, Jason Russex, senior, and Mike King, junior, led the team by example. Pat Daxon was even nominated to the First Team All-Conference (TAAC) and Second Team All South (NSCAA).

Prior to the season, the team was picked to finish third in the conference. The team was looking for a great season and only a loss by penalty kicks kept them from an NCAA championship tourney.

Coach Gary McKinley has dedicated his life to becoming the finest technician in the game of soccer in the United States. Of the seniors, he said, "This is the finest group of seniors I've ever had."

O'SULLIVAN

TOOK A DIFFERENT APPROACH THIS YEAR

“We have good players and we are playing as a team.”
—Barry Hinckley

Mike O'Sullivan took a different coaching tactic for the golf team this year. Instead of basing his lectures on technique and talent, he focused on the mental side. “We have good players and we are playing as a team. Going into a game, we don't hope to do well, we are expecting it,” said junior Barry Hinckley.

The men's and women's golf team play in tournaments throughout the year under co-captains Mark Leetzow and Connie Demmetia. Five people are chosen to go to each tournament. The top three players at the previous tournament are chosen and the other two positions are battled out at 1:00 practices every day.

“Winning the Stetson Intercollegiate Golf Tournament was great!” comments sophomore Jon Archard. Big games this year were against Houston Baptist and Georgia Southern.

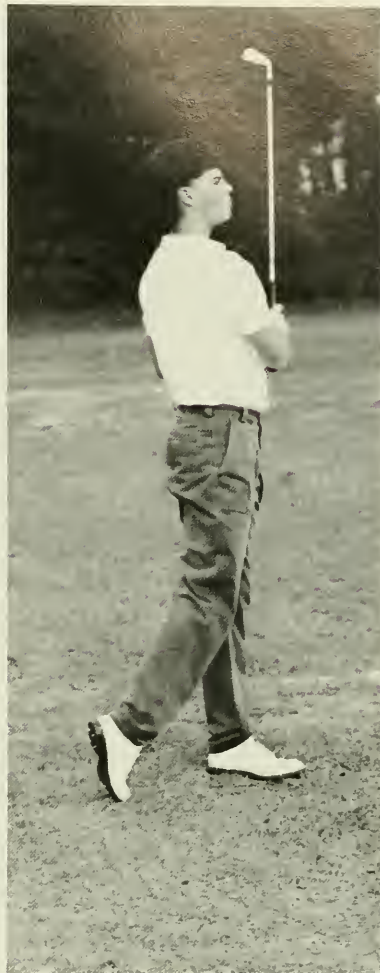

Tom Creavy, freshman, finds collegiate golf very different from high school. “Everybody is a good player as opposed to only two or three in high school.”

The women's team made a turn around in the middle of the season when they picked up a coach and had a more enthusiastic and exciting spring.

YOUNG TEAM AND NEW COACH

“This year was a rebuilding year. The next few will be crucial for the development of a strong winning program.”

—Christy Hoffmann

This year proved to be one filled with obstacles and challenges for the Lady Hat Volleyball team. Not only was it the first year with Coach Janiece Holder, but it was also a season with a young team. With only six returning players, including seniors Mary Margaret Enns and Captain Christy Hoffmann, the team relied on the enthusiasm of its six freshman. Although the team's season ended with a record of 18-23, they finished fifth in the Conference Championships.

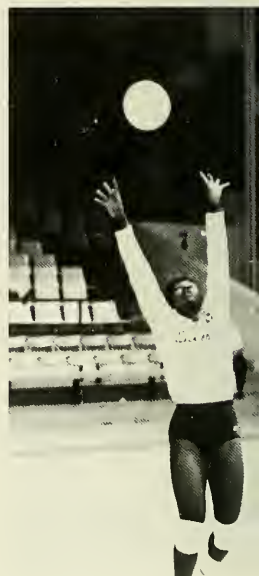

The team's strengths included veteran Michele McEntire and freshmen Cindy Bengé and Tawnya Hartwick. Freshman Dana Allen said, “there was a bond between all of us, especially the freshmen. We are all very good friends and I think that will be important in creating a strong foundation in the upcoming years.” Although the team will be losing two valuable seniors, this year of experience for the Lady Hats should continue to make them a driving force within the New South.

This year the Hatter Basketball squad focused on working as a team. Sophomore forward Bjorn Gehrke stated that defense really paid off and a much more effective defense was created.

Team work also paid off during an intense game against archrival Houston Baptist where the Hatters overcame great difficulties in order to win their first conference game. As Tim Jacobs said, “It showed us that we could do it, when we put our hearts to it.”

Five seniors leave the Hatters this year — Captain Randy Anderson, Captain Jimmy Kuhl, Terry Johnson, Steve Colman, and Eric Cumbie. Another notable player is Bjorn Gehrke who is a member of the Swedish Olympic Team. Gehrke, along with a junior, sophomores, and freshmen hope to fill the leaving senior shoes.

Another outstanding player is sophomore Frank Ireland. His position is point guard and he feels there is a good guard combination.

Senior Terry Johnson shoots for three as the clock runs down to thirty-five seconds.

LADY HATS

COME ON STRONG AND PROVE TO

*be a New

ball!*

“This year we had a lot of good young players that kept the experienced girls on their toes”
—Coach Nancy Nichols

Winning the championship of the Hatter Classics was one of the numerous memories the three co-captains Michelle Michael, Courtney Hall, and Anita Mathur will never forget about their last Stetson season. They have all been playing for the Lady Hatters since their freshman year. Courtney Hall remembers with a chuckle, “I gradually improved. My freshman year I sat the bench.”

Coach Nichols has been setting new trends during the five years she has coached. While improving the Lady Hatters from the bottom up, she also started recruiting girls from England. Sarah Foley and Sally Bunyard are natives of England. Why come to Stetson? “Obviously for academics as well as basketball,” says Sally, “also the experience in a foreign country.” American basketball has a few different rules and tends to be more physical. Sally would recommend Stetson to any English player, but warns that you have to be able to handle being a long way from home for a long time.

The Lady Hatters had an excellent year and look forward to another. They know we are all behind them.

FIRE UP!

CHEERLEADERS

BEGIN NEW

“We encourage crowd participation and cheer on the team!”

—Julie Ann Furr

The cheerleading squad continued old traditions this year by recruiting both male and females. It was a first for Jim Kuebler who had never cheered before. He found it “unusual at first because of the movements,” but then got into the swing of things and now thinks it is “pretty fun”.

The squad practices for 2 hours each on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday. Besides working on cheers, they perfected two half-time shows which included a dance number, a pyramid, and a cheer. Hard work went into every stunt they performed, but no matter how hard it is, they were dedicated to the student body.

Coached under seniors Jamie Ball and Michelle Solomon, the cheerleaders are setting a new tradition by having students teaching students. They looked upon the year with great anticipation.

The squad was very young and none of them had ever cheered at the college level. Quoted from the beginning of the year, Jamie said, “We are starting the year at the same level we ended last year so I’m excited to see how far we go.”

NEW HEAD

COACH JOINS WITH STRONG

“All of our returnees played last year . . . we’re on course to continue the positive trend the veterans have started.”

—Bill Furlong

Although not a new face to the Tennis Team, Bill Furlong worked as coach for the men’s team for the first time this season. Last year’s assistant to Vicky Pate enjoyed returning to experienced, motivated athletes, and led them to a successful season. Four of his top five players were returning students, and proved to be a valuable asset to the team as a whole and to the five new freshmen recruits.

Vicky Pate concentrated her coaching efforts on the Women’s Tennis Team this year. Newcomers and top-ranked Michele Diaz-Miranda and Julie Biak-Cin added dimension to the already competitive and hard-driving team. In January, when looking ahead, Coach Pate commented: “With the depth we have this year, competition for the top six will be tough. The players force each other to concentrate and improve and this can only be a plus for us.”

Mandy Stoll

In a November 29 ceremony, students, teachers, and staff members dedicated a dogwood tree in memory of Mandy Stoll. Stoll was injured last April, just before the end of school, in an automobile accident. She never regained consciousness from the accident, and died on April 22, 1988.

The site chosen for the tree and surrounding landscaping is a corner directly in front of the Edmunds Center. Azaleas and chrysanthemums were also planted, and a bronze and marble plaque marks the site. Funds for the memorial were contributed by professors, staff members, and students, and the area will be maintained by the Lady Hatter Booster Club.

Stoll, at the time of her death, held the number 1 ranking on the Women's Tennis Team. She played both singles and doubles tennis.

Lady Hatter veteran Kami Hostetler fought top newcomers to receive a starting spot this season. She finished in the top six.

STRONG HITTERS BACK UP NEW PITCHERS AND

hot team.*

“We’ve got a lot of upperclassman and with that returning leadership, we hope to win the conference for the fourth year in a row.”

—Coach Holder

Six newcomers to the Lady Hatter Softball ushered in a new and exciting season. Last season rounded out on a high note (out of their final 20 games, the Lady Hats won 18), and the new teammates worked to support that winning momentum. At the beginning of this Spring, the biggest unknown was pitching power. New pitchers strived to perform for their team.

Although the pitching staff was new, they enjoyed back-up from strong hitters and middle defense. Swartz, Camposano and Hauck provide solid returnees for middle defense, and Camposano, Swartz, Tankersley, and Hauck lead the way in hitting, extra base hits, home runs, and base-stealing, respectively. Isaacs and Hartwick brought with them more hitting expertise.

Under Head Coach Janiece Holder, Assistant Coaches Katy Barbour and Mike Robinson, and Athletic Trainer Chris Ramer, the Lady Hats proved once again that they had the right stuff, individually and as a team.

These Lady Hats played a hard season as they fought to uphold a fourth straight NSWAC Conference title.

Softball: Dana Allen, Lynne Camposano, Patty Dailey, Tawnya Hartwick, Janet Hauck, Shauna Isaacs, Denise Mikel, Cheri Nelson, Laurel Robinson, Gianna Stoker, Andrea Swartz, Robyn Swartz, Jodie Switzer, Sandra Tankersley, Head Coach Janiece Holder, Asst. Katy Barbour, Trainer Chris Ramer

Team leader Denise Mikel was Lady Hatter record holder for put-outs in a game, season, and career.

Third baseman Andrea Swartz was a top returnee and also gained pitching experience last season in nine games.

DIVING INTO FIRST; TRANSFERS

‘ We have a strong outfield . . . we only lost four, and we brought in some Junior College Transfers.

’ —Pete Dunn

Nineteen eighty-nine was the year for Stetson baseball. The Hatters returned to the field this year with assurance after capturing the Trans American Conference (TAAC) Championship in 1988. Stetson looked at over 40 prospects to fill the team during Fall practice in September, indicating that the Hatters continue to provide a formidable program for its players.

In looking over the strengths and weaknesses of his Hatter team, Coach Dunn commented first that the outfield is very strong, "We only lost four, and we brought in some Junior College Transfers." He also noted that "our (overall) speed is better than average." The only weakness he foresaw was a lack of depth in pitching, but that, overall, the team continues to be strong and work well together.

Catcher and Co-Captain Tim Farrand took over as No. 1 receiver last year and started 56 of the team's 61 games.

Hatter starting pitcher George Tsamis has won 20 games and struck out 220 batters over the past three years. He walked just 33 batters in 104 innings.

‘He’s been around; he’s smart.’

—Mike Sempeles on Coach Dunn

The Dunn Decade: Looking Back, Looking Ahead

Ten years ago, in 1978, Pete Dunn came to Stetson ... for the second time. At that time, he took over as Assistant Coach for the Hatter Baseball Team. Then, in 1980, he became Head Coach, taking over for Jim Ward.

These were not Coach Dunn's first memories of Stetson. He was an undergraduate student here, and served as co-captain during his junior and senior years. After graduating in 1970, he played pro ball with Kansas City, earned his Master's degree at Georgia Southern, and then coached at Apopka High School.

Now, in his tenth year of coaching at Stetson, he can easily be credited with creating one of the most highly-respected college baseball programs in the nation. He is among the nation's top 50 coaches in winning percentages and among the top 125 in total victories. Dunn's teams average 37 wins per season.

Mike Sempeles, outfielder, says, "(Coach Dunn) demands perfection; he keeps the basic philosophy simple. He's been around; he's smart." Sempeles believes that the team has one of the best coaching staffs in the country, due mainly to the efforts of Pete Dunn.

Junior infielder Dan Finley has collected 11 hits in 31 plate appearances for a .355 career average.

Catcher Tim Farrand returns the ball. During the 1988 season he threw out over 40% of all base stealers.

Head Coach Pete Dunn was among the nation's top 50 coaches in winning percentage and among the top 125 in total victories all in just nine years.

Left handed pitcher Mike Wallace transferred to Stetson this year as a senior and added strength and leadership to the team.

Infielder Tom Taylor was new to the team but was expected to add power from the left side.

INTRAMURALS

GIVE ALL STUDENTS CHANCES TO COMPETE

“The girls are very competitive, but after that final gun sounds, they are still friends.”

—Ric Darlington

“It’s a chance for the students to play in a sport they wouldn’t normally play. Plus you are playing with friends; some who are athletic, others who aren’t, but it doesn’t matter.”

Ric Darlington was the director of intramurals and said that the sportsmanship meant the most to him. Intramurals offered sports from ping pong to football to swimming. Members of the intramurals were fraternities and sororities along with groups like BCM and residential life.

Claudia Epting, Zeta, said, “I think the increased participation in men’s intramurals had been impressive — so much that an intramural game is attended almost as much as a collegiate sports event.”

“There was a friendly competitiveness and improved quality of play,” commented Valerie, Phi Mu. She also said that generally there was good organization and an increase in a number of sports.

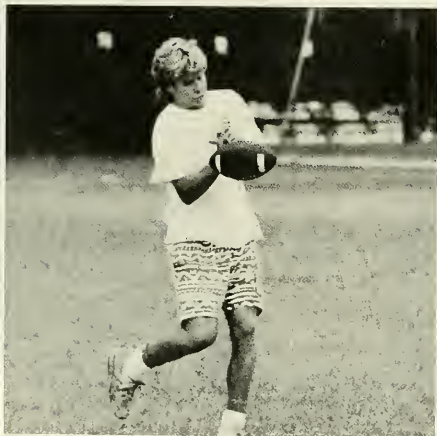

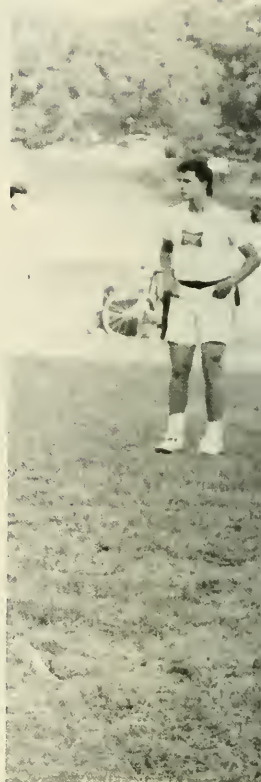

Intramurals are headed in the right direction and only good is to come. Possibly in the future there will be an All-Star team in which the “cream of the crop” compete.

“Some are athletic other’s aren’t; but it doesn’t matter.”

Q: How can a student's involvement in the organization you advise benefit him/her in the future?

A: Dr. John Booth, on Alpha Kappa Psi: "Being a member helps by exposing students to a business environment . . . provides camaraderie of like-minded people . . . and it amounts to a type of networking for future business leaders."

A: Deborah Branton, on Stetson Coalition for Social Responsibility: "Students with majors such as Sociology will find participation (in CSR) applicable to their future jobs. It also helps fill the void some people feel when they see so much to be done and don't know how to help do it."

solid gold

What makes Stetson students Solid Gold? Not only do they excel in a variety of challenging subjects in class, students shine in a variety of campus areas outside of their academic pursuits. There are over fifty organizations open to interested students, including scholastic, honorary, religious, political, and service-oriented groups. The Department of Student Life, located in Flagler Hall, coordinates all campus-affiliated organizations.

Well over three-fourths of the student body participate in some kind of extra-curricular activity. Organizations provide members with a way to meet people, develop leadership skills, and learn more about themselves and others.

SUB (Stetson Union Board) members welcome comedians and entertainers throughout the year for their Top Hat Entertainment series.

DOWN TO BUSINESS

There are four campus organizations associated with the business school. The Accounting Club, Alpha Kappa Psi, Phi Chi Theta, and the Stetson Marketing Association all promote extra-curricular studies in business related topics within their special fields. They sponsor guest speakers, special topic discussions, career preparation, interviewing tips, as well as socials throughout the year to allow club members to get together on a friendly level. Field trips are also beneficial in that they give members first hand experience of relations in the business world. These activities help prepare club members for work in the "real world" by giving basic business foundations. Each club also provides their members with opportunities to serve in leadership roles that will provide them valuable experiences within their chosen careers.

SERVICE NEVER STOPS

Many students feel the best way they can contribute to Stetson is through service clubs. These clubs include Circle K International, Student Government Association, Stetson Union Board, Stetson Coalition for Social Responsibility, and Delta Pi Alpha.

CKI is an extension of Key Club, and one of their community service projects is working with the elderly at the Hugh West Gerontology Center. SGA represents all the students of Stetson in its issues, concerns, and operations. SUB is the major coordinator of campus activities such as movies, Top Hat entertainment, MTV, and trips to Medieval Times and Busch Gardens. CSR sponsors speakers and special events like Project Feed-a-Family and the Jamaica Relief Fund for victims of Hurricane Floyd. Delta Pi is a new organization for women that provides many activities for its members.

LET THE SONSHINE

Stetson is proud of its many religious organizations that provide activities and services for students. BCM offers activities such as Thursday night vespers, care packages, an ice cream social during FOCUS, revival teams, and Personal and Mission Emphasis Weeks. Wesley House also provides fellowship activities and vespers for students, in addition to retreats, state meetings, and bible studies. Intervarsity is the newest religious organization on campus, formed only last spring. It is an interdenominational group of students who enjoy gathering in small and large groups to study the Bible together. Finally, the Religious Life Council is composed of representatives from each religious group on campus. RLC helps to plan such events as ecumenical retreats, World Hunger programs, and the Yule Log Lighting ceremony.

Students enjoy fun and fellowship . . . and a common bond.

BLINDED BY SCIENCE

Stetson boasts of its many scientific honorary societies which recognize students' outstanding achievements in some branch of the scientific community. Beta Beta Beta extends active membership to biology majors and holds field trips, an annual Spring Banquet and picnic, and monthly meetings. Gamma Sigma Epsilon is a society recognizing outstanding junior and senior chemistry students, while The American Chemical Society is oriented towards chemistry and chemical engineering professionals. Members are involved in field trips, special projects, and guest lectures. Sigma Pi Sigma, a society for Physics students, hosts banquets, inductions, meetings, and events with The Society of Physics Students. SPS also provides opportunities for Physics students or any interested students to meet together and to discover career opportunities.

AN ELITE FEW

During Phi Eta Sigma induction, Heidi Davis was honored with her certificate and a friendly welcome from officer Kim Holmes.

Other Honorary organizations at Stetson include Mortar Board, Omicron Delta Kappa, Phi Eta Sigma, Phi Alpha Delta, and Theta Alpha Phi. Mortar Board is a senior honorary for students who excel academically and in service to the university. Hatter Hat Day is a special event sponsored by Mortar Board. ODK is a leadership honorary that recognizes both outstanding student and faculty. A society for outstanding freshmen, Phi Eta Sigma recognizes students who achieve a 3.5 or better GPA in their first year. Phi Alpha Delta recognizes achievement in historical studies. Prospective members must prepare a major speech for consideration of initiation, and members participate in regional and national conventions. Honors drama students who excel in theatrical activities are considered for membership in Theta Alpha Phi. Membership is earned through work done in Stover Theatre productions.

MAKING OUR MARK

A variety of organizations are available for students who are interested in becoming involved on campus, including Forensics, College Republicans, Sigma Tau Delta, Panhellenic, and Music School Student Advisory Council. Forensics members compete in state and national tournaments, gaining recognition for prizes won and unique individual performances. The College Republicans further the interests and platforms of their political party by sponsoring campaigns, speakers, and lecturers. Students of the School of Music Student Advisory Council meet regularly to discuss issues of interest and to communicate concerns to the Dean. Sigma Tau Delta recognizes and encourages student achievement in literature and language. Members of the Panhellenic and Jr. Panhellenic Councils are sorority representatives who meet to plan special programs, Greek Week, the Greek Banquet, and the staff/faculty Easter Egg Hunt.

Participation in clubs allows us to express ourselves and personalize our education.

SOUND OF MUSIC

The School of Music provides a wide variety of opportunities for music and non-music majors to perform in all areas. For the music major, these ensembles contribute to the fulfillment of degree requirements. For non-majors, many of the ensembles may be taken for credit and are open, by audition, to students, faculty, and staff members. The Symphonic Wind Ensemble performs regularly on campus and tours off campus. Conducted by Bobby Adams, this Ensemble includes in its repertoire selections from both the symphonic band and orchestral wind section literature. The Concert Choir, conducted by Dr. Robert Rich, is a group of singers selected by audition. This group represents the University at conventions, at schools, and in churches.

MARK REED

Remembering a friend . . .

Last summer, Stetson violinist Mark Reed had the opportunity to play in France. A native of Anderson, SC, Reed had studied violin at the Mannes School of Music in New York. His hard work and immense talent payed off in the form of a full Stetson scholarship. Reputed as always remaining on everybody's "good list," Mark, a junior, was also commended by his violin professor, Jennifer Savastano, for always having "drive and energy." Mark's goal was to teach. "He wanted to be able to inspire other people," said Savastano.

On November 3, 1988, Steven Mark Reed, age 20, died from complications from injuries sustained in an automobile accident a few days earlier.

rich in style

Members of greek organizations make up over 45% of the total campus undergraduate population, well over the national average for fraternity and sorority memberships. What makes fraternities and sororities such a strong force on campus?

First, Rush is a well-publicized, organized, and ambitious way to introduce prospective members to the greek system. Secondly, because there are so many members of greek organizations, even students who are not members become familiar with fraternities and sororities as a whole through contact with greek friends. Finally, greeks assert themselves in all areas of campus and community service, and individual members are active in many areas on campus outside their own fraternities and sororities.

GREEK ALL THE WAY

Despite the extensive negative publicity Stetson Greeks received in the previous year, initiates of both sororities and fraternities returned this fall stronger than ever. During formal Rush, 271 young men and women each pledged themselves to an extraordinary organization. Alpha, Delta, Beta? It all sound so confusing. What do the words mean? What do those letters represent? For a new pledge it means new friends, new commitments, and endless study hours. Of course a lot of parties come with the pledge pin, but all Greeks maintain high moral and academic standards. Not only do they allow students to gather socially, but they enable them to develop excellent leadership and communication skills.

GREEK MEANS SUCCESS

New rules regulating Stetson greeks in 1988 also came with new expectations. The Greek system was to be re-evaluated by Stetson's Task Force. To help enhance a positive public image on campus, the Intrafraternity Council and Panhellenic put together a variety of programs designed to educate and promote a better understanding of Greek Life at Stetson University. Under the direction of Student Affairs, four separate programs were presented, entitled Greek 101. First a film was shown confronting the stereotypes and myths Greeks have received in the past. Two panel discussions were held for pledges on Sexual Rights & Responsibilities and Stress Management. Ending Greek 101 was a seminar concerning the legal liability of fraternities and sororities.

BIGGER AND BETTER

Greek Life, a major part of Stetson, gives men and women many opportunities to work with others on and off campus. The Greeks work with various philanthropies, the largest being Greenfeather, an annual campus-wide activity that raises money for local and national charities. This year the Greeks raised $10,000, over half of the donation. Also, the Greeks have their own individual philanthropies. For example, the Pi Phis and the Pikes have "Headstart," a Halloween event to entertain the underprivileged children of DeLand. The Zeta's Trick-or-Treat aid the Children's Methodist Home while the Sig Eps have an annual softball marathon to raise money for Muscular Dystrophy.

golden opportunities

Advertising in a yearbook benefits not only the advertisers who contribute but the students who keep their yearbooks for years to come. Advertisers gain exposure in a publication that is referred to again and again. The Stetson Hatter is distributed to all students free of charge, so it reaches a great percentage of the student body. The yearbook is also distributed to parents, faculty and staff members, businesses, and professionals.

Hatter advertisements, in turn, provide students with a source to refer to when looking for products, public services, restaurants, and community resources. Parents and friends of seniors are afforded the opportunity to congratulate graduating students.

"The Committed Paint People."

Where sales and service are more than a slogan. We will do what we say we will do! We won't commit to something we can't do! Once we commit to something, WE WILL DO IT!

We can't say it enough.

golden moments

Q: What is the favorite part of your job?

A: Anita Beck, Student Affairs; I love working with the students. Their friendliness and youthfulness make my job fun.

A: Robin Sieftring, Career Planning and Placement; I enjoy helping and working with the students. It's rewarding to bring them through the process and satisfying to see them get that job.

midas touch

Who, in a university of over 2,000 students, well over 400 employees, generations of loyal alumni, and countless supporters, has that special "touch" that turns a piece of parchment paper into a diploma of high stature? It is the faculty, who commit themselves to the complete and quality education of their students. It is the staff, who work to make the students out-of-classroom lives as full and vital as their in-the-classroom experiences. It is the administration, who plans for the future and maintains the standards of excellence in the present. Their Midas Touch helps turn a Stetson degree into gold.

Lt. Col. Tarleton takes a dive off the repelling tower as M.S.G. Walker looks on.

Tongue twisters no problem for Stetson's Lee

See if You can say this three times real fast: ineffable, effable, effanineffable.

I can't even say it once. Wouldn't know what I'd said if I said it.

But Doug Lee can say it perfectly. The Stetson University president probably knows what it means, too, 'cause he said it several times at the school's recent convocation.

Doug talked about how cats name themselves and how they have a secret name that no one knows but themselves and no one can think of but themselves. It was an unusual mixture of T.S. Eliot, Broadway and the oracle at Delphi which ended with a challenge to discover oneself.

Eliot described the secret name as an "ineffable, effable, effanineffable" name and Doug incorporated that phrase into his speech three or four times. It was a real verbal challenge and his staff was taking bets on whether he could say it without stumbling.

But the president said it perfectly every time. Doug gets a Magna Cum Laude in tongue twisters.

MITCHELL REDDISH

Dr. Mitchell Reddish, assistant professor of religion, has an article, "Martyr Christology in the Apocalypse", in the current issue of the Journal for the Study of the New Testament, an international journal. During the summer, he also received a contract from Abingdon Press to write a book, "A Reader in Apocalyptic Literature," which will be used as a text in a Course at Stetson.

STEPHEN ROBINSON

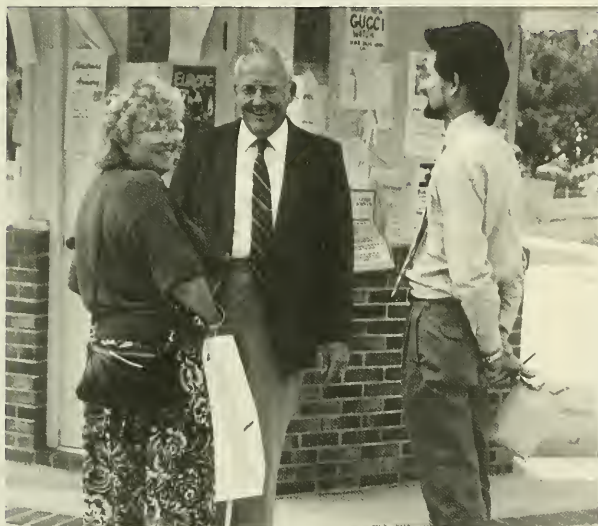

Dr. Stephen Robinson, assistant professor of music, was recently awarded a 1989 National Endowment for the Arts Solo Recitalists Grant. The $15,000 award will be used to underwrite Dr. Robinson's performances of his childrens program, "Music from Around the World." A portion of the grant will also fund promotional materials, including a video for the program.

MARGARET HORTON

Dr. Margaret Horton, professor of education and director of student teaching, attended the annual conference of the Southeastern Association of Teacher Educators in Lexington, Kentucky held in late October. With other colleagues from education and business, she presented "Verbal and Non-verbal Communication: The Foundation of Pre-service Teacher Education."

STEVE BARNETT

Dr. Steve Barnett, associate professor of marketing, was invited to serve as a discussant at two conferences this past year. One was the 1988 National Retailing Conference, co-sponsored by the Academy of Marketing Sciences and the American Collegiate Retailing Association. The other was the Marketing Education Track of the Southern Marketing Association's annual conference.

Dr. Wright, Dr. Hood, and Dr. Young take time out to chat about their busy day.

George R. Williams

This year marks the seventeenth year here for George R. Williams, director of the Career Planning and Placement Center. The center provides students with a variety of career planning assistance. Most notably, the Annual Career Exposition (A.C.E.), held this past November, brings companies and government agencies to campus. Under Mr. Williams supervision, A.C.E. provides students with the opportunity to talk one-to-one with prospective employers.

Mr. Williams was the first black student to earn a degree from Stetson. He was also the first black member of the administrative staff.

ANN CROCE

Dr. Ann Jerome Croce, assistant professor of American Studies, has published an article in the Summer 1988 issue of the Journal Critique: Studies in Modern Fiction. Her article is entitled "The Making of Post-Modern Man: Modernism and the Southern Tradition in the Fiction of Walker Percy."

DEREK BARKALOW

Dr. Derek Barkalow, associate professor of biology and director of the honors program, attended the annual meeting of the National Collegiate Honors Council in Las Vegas in late October. There, he made a presentation entitled, "Collaborative Science Learning: Investigations in Cognitive Science."

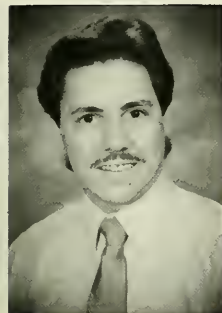

NICK MADDOX

Dr. Nick Maddox, assistant professor of management, attended the November meeting of the Southern Management Association held in Atlanta. He served as program discussant in three divisions of the Association, including managerial consultation, organizational behavior, and management education and development.

ALLAN SANDER

Dr. Allan Sander, assistant professor of physical education, attended the Florida Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Dance convention in Hollywood October 13-15. He presented a program entitled, "Enhancing Children's Knowledge of Fitness Concepts Through Learning Support Materials" while there.

DR. FRED MESSERSMITH

After 30 years, this is Dr. Messersmith's final year at Stetson. As Chairman of the Art Dept., Dr. Messersmith says he can see how Stetson stays top-ranked among small universities academically "judged by the quality of students I've had and the success they've enjoyed in the field of art. Many are nationally known artists and educators." Lucky for Stetson, Prof. Messersmith is not leaving us completely. He will remain as artist-in-residence and retain his studio on campus.

Dr. Ferland is the Director of International Affairs and a professor of French here at Stetson. He attended a Business French course in Paris last summer and wrote a critique of it that was published in the Summer 1988 issue of Le Francais Commercial in France. Dr. Ferland sees Stetson as not yet at the pinnacle of success, but continually striving toward being the best. "To be the best, there is the need for an even greater commitment to excellence on the part of all areas of the university. This will require effort and a redirection of activities away from the social and toward the academic . . . We must accentuate the intellectual, the compassionate, the human elements of the university."

EDUCATION

Elizabeth C. Pippio

I have two daughters attending Stetson. I am excited to see how their professors and courses are challenging them to broaden their intellect and enrich their personalities. They are being exposed to new concepts, ideas, and information that previously was not a part of their lives simply because they did not have exposure to them. Both have changed their majors because of courses introduced to them within the liberal arts program, and are feeling enthusiastic and confident about their career choices. As an employee of Stetson, I appreciate the coursework generated by the professors with whom I work, but as a mother I KNOW what Stetson is all about.

FACULTY/SUPPORT

Sims D. Kline

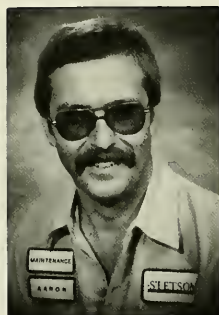

Sims Kline, Director of the Dupont-Ball Library, believes that the resources and services provided by the library contribute to the overall excellence of the university. "I think we have made significant progress in this effort and we certainly have ambitious goals for the future." In October Mr. Kline completed publication of the fifth volume of "Literary Criticism Register: A Monthly Listing of Studies in English and American Literature." The LCR lists articles, books, and dissertations in the field of literature and is subscribed to by librarians, departments, and individuals in the United States and abroad.

TO THE CLASS OF '89

Stetson green is a perfect place to study on a sunny day. Dennis Campbell gets some last minute cramming done.

Art teacher Dan Gunderson had a valuable student assistant in Stacey Cooley.

Entertainer Rick Kelley was one of the SUB Top Hat Entertainers that came to Stetson. Jackie Cinotti and Top Hat Chairman Linda Holloway grabbed him for a pose.

Off to the races! Theta Heidi Davis donned a helmet to go sailing down the street in a bed as part of Greek Week's Bed Races.

Stetson beauties Nicki Spirtos, April Duncan, and Erica Wilcox had the opportunity to flirt with "Stud Man" at a taping of MTV's Remote Control.

Putting together a yearbook is anything but easy, and I didn't believe that until this year, but there were a few special people who made it a lot easier than it could have been. First, all of my section editors were wonderful — Brooke, Nicki, Kim, Shelli, Kim and Terri — Thank you. Jim Goodfriend is a miracle man for raising all the money we needed with no experience and so little time. I'm so glad that we chose you. Next, if it weren't for Amy, I would have had repeated nervous breakdowns at every deadline. Thank goodness for her Never-Say-Die attitude and ego-boosting pep talks. Finally, thank you to honorary staff member Jim, who saved me on more than one occasion and for listening quietly while I frequently aired my frustrations. I love you!

I hope that you enjoyed this year's edition of the HATTER and that somehow my contribution made it better.

Sincerely,

Susan Bowman

Editor, 1989 HATTER
